the of intersection of the nave and transept, behind which alone is 48 feet in length and the same in width. "The ficer of the Cathedral has a superficial area of 28,500 feet, and will afford sufficient room for 14,000 persons. When necessity requires it, this number might be safely increased to 19,000. The main body of the church alone is sufficiently spacious to hold 12,000 persons, all of whom can see the high altar and assist at the celebration of the minss thereat. The columns which separate the nave from the side siales are each 16 feet is diameter at the base, and are 24 in number. They are what is known as the Gothic clustered, having 12 columns in each cluster, and are contracted of the same material as the rest of the building—white marble. Besede these, there are 32 half columns of the same description at regular intervals along the walls and between the chapels and sidewalks.

"The building is entered in front by three great portals, after the style of the French Cathedrals. The center portal is 50 feet high, and decorated with rich moldings, columns, and foliated capitals. Over the great central door is a grand rose or marigold window, 28 feet in diameter, and rising above it is a rich crochetted gable, surmounted by a finial cross. On each side of the great center portal, and over the two side doors, is a tower with a spire that rices from the form of a square at its base to that of an octagon. The tower is divided into four stories below the point at which the spire may properly be raid to commence. Each of these stirres is 330 feet in hight to the base of the cross, and is crowned with a finial and cross. The fr. ats of the two transepts, which face north and south on Firhieth and Fifty-first streets, consist each of three divisions, the whole appearanc indicating the internal features of this part of the edifice. The center division has a soor 25 feet wide and 43 feet high, and over this soft and will be commended with the tracery, in a style corresponding with the rest of the gable, terms, the which a uniform temperature is preserved at all seasons of the year.

"In one of the towers are the chimes, and in the other the great bell, according to the arrangement of the eld Cathedrals of Europe. Unlike the generality of churches in the city, it has no basement; but, in its stead, wide-extending vaults, from which the edifice will be heated by steam-pipes, ramifying through its varieus divisions. The floor of the building is made of variegated ma bles and stones, in Gothic patierns, so that the uniformity of the designs on which the Cathedral has been planned is preserved in its minutest details. The whole of the vast edifice stands upon a platform which is raised to an average high; of five feet above the level of the street, and which adds grastly to the general effect. The space covered by the walls, inside, will be in superficial measurement, 38,500 feet. The entire space beneath and within the buttresses will be 46,500 feet. The architects are Messrs. James Renwick, jr., and William Rodrigue."

ORDER OF RANK AMONG FURS.—A large proportion of the furs used in this country and elsewhere, are cured and dressed in London; and although England does not use expensive furs, yet London is the great fur mart of the world. The ermine is considered the most precious, and next to that the Russian sable; but the real sables are rare, for, according to our latest Russian statistics, only 25,000 skins of the beautiful fittle animal were produced during an entire year in the Car's Empire. The prices paid for them are almost fabulous, a fine set being worth $2,000. The sable fur lining of one of the Emperor's cloake, exhibited at the World's Fair in 1851, was valued at £1,000. Next to the sable in popularity and costliness, ranks ited at the World's Fair in 1851, was valued at £1,000. Next to the sable in popularity and costliness, ranks the marten, or American sable—a fur rich and high-priced, yet so fashionable as to be almost universally sought for. The Hudson Bay sables are next in value, and are almost as expensive as the Russian. Next is the mink, preminent fer beauty, wear, and durability. It is not, perhaps, so delicate-looking as the stone marten, or so artful kooking as the African minkey, or so captivating as the ermine; but it is quiet and graceful and more thrifty than them all. Besides the mink, the stone marten, the Fuch, the Siberian squirrel, and the Permarten, the Fuch, the Siberian squirrel, and the Permarten, the Fuch, the Siberian squirrel, and the Permarten the fuch the stone that the ston thrifty than them all. Besides the mink, the stone marten, the Fatch, the Siberian squirrel, and the Persian and Russian lamb, are in daily use. The skin of the Black bear forms the most magnificent sleigh rebes—a good tern-out of which, including robe and apron, costs upward of $100. The Canadian furs most esteemed in Europe, and of which they have no representatives, are the black fox and the silver fox. These are found only in the Hudson's Bay Territory, or on the north shore of the St. Lawrence. The raccoon and the muskrat are also confined exclusively to this continent. In England, valuable furs are but little worn—the climate not requiring the lengthened wear of furs at any one time. The muskrat, and the rabbit, and the American hare, dyed, form therefore the bulk of the furs worn there. The value of those exported from the United States in 1857, was $1,116,041.

The Stock market was fairly active at the morning seesion but without important feature. Prices were irregular, but generally the tendency from the opening was upward. The bears appeared disposed to make no special efforts to resist any rally which might be at-attempted, but the continued difficulty of carrying stocks tended to check the disposition to buy which existed. The bear jobbers would undoubtealy be glad to see a rally which would give them a higher basis upon which to operate and on such a rally we abould undoubtedly have a more active market. The low points touched have brought in some buyers from outside speculators, but scarcely enough to influence the market perceptibly. At the Second Board the market was steady, and was favorably influenced by the firmness in Central, of which cash stock is quite scarce. The market for this stock closed at exactly the figures of yesterday. The managers have made an arrangement with the Erie road for an advance of passenger fares and cattle freights, which it is thought will increase the monthly estrings of each road about $25,000. Passenger fares to Buffalo are advanced to $9, and cattle freights are put up $20 per car. Reading was beavy and would have been lower but for orders to buy from Philadelphia. The annual report is not satisfactory, and the agitation of the question of removing the transfer books from this city operated unfavorably. Between the Boards it sold as low as 393, but afterward recovered to 40 bid. The Western shares generally were without important change, and in fair demand. Qulena improved | P cent from the opening. The transfer books are to be closed on the 25th inst., according to notice, "preparatory to the de-claration of a dividend. In the Bond market there was claration of a dividend. In the Bond market there was but little done, and prices dragged. The Erie issues unsecured are lower. Sufficient "assents" to the plan for reorganizing this Company have been secured, we understand, to make the scheme a certainty. State Stocks are inactive. We hear that an arrangement has been made with the La Crosse Road by which the foreclosure of the first mortgage bonds has been stopped. The second mortgage foreclosure is to be prosecuted, and the re-ceipts in the meanwhile to be distributed in accordance with an agreement made by Mr. Paimer, of the Broadway Bank, who has visited Wisconsin on this business. By the annexed table it will be seen that the imports in 1859, at this port, were considerably larger than somewhat less marked among stock-houses than it was last week. The demand for discounts at the banks is larger than they can meet, and consequently high rates larger than they can meet, and consequently high rates are established in out-door transactions. Leading four and six months' paper is passed at 8 a 10 b' cent, with very little below 9 b' cent. There seems to be an under-current of distrust in regard to paper, which has been increased by the failure announced yesterday. Demand loans are nomically 7 b' cent, but in some casee higher rates have been paid, on first-class collaterels. Treasury Notes have sold to-day to considerals. Treasury Notes have sold to-day to considerable extent at $\psi$ cent discount for 5\psi$ \psi$ cents, and 1-16 $\psi$ cent premium for 6 $\psi$ cents. The gold by the California steamer not being in demand for ebipment, has been mostly deposited on the option of the owner, for a few days, to call for coins or bars. A considerable amount has been deposited for coins. As the Sub-Tressury here has now no bullion fund, depositors are obliged to wait the slow process of coinage, some three or four weeks, before receiving returns. This is a great embarrassment, and the gold has been sold by the parties receiving it at \(\frac{1}{2}\) P cent discount in consequence. We continue to draw some gold from Boston, but we are losing much larger amounts to the South, where, according to present appearances, we must send two or three millions more in settlement of balances and for the purchase of exchange. The attempt to remove the transfer books of the Reading road from this city, has, we hear, been abandoned.

At the request of the Commercial Bank of Burlington, Vt., we print the annexed certificate of the Bank Commissioner of that State. The opinion of a Bank Commissioner, however, we do not consider of much value in regard to the solvency of a bank.

BANK CORNISSIONER'S OFFICE, BENNISSTON, Vt., Jan. 5, 1850.

I beledy certify, that on the 25th of December, 1850, I made such an examination of the Franklin County Sauk, and on the 25th of Jenesey, 1850, of the Union Bank and Commercial Bank, in this State, that I am able to say: that the Franklin County Fank has an available surplus exceeding $6,600, after making provision for all its liabilities and after deducting from its reservices all country flowers; that the Union Bank has a like surplus of $8,400; after providing for a semi-annual dividend of $6,000.

That since my appointment as Bank Commissioner, in October, 1857, I have been acquainted personally with the managers of raid banks; and I regard them as countous men and safe bankers, and as for as my examinations have shown these banks have been well immaged for the accuraty of the politicand the interests of the stechnology; that I believe these banks are regarded as among the vastest brake in the State, and I consider them perfectly sound, and their bith-holders secured beyond any contingency.

A. B. GARDNER, Bank Commissioner of Vermont.

The explosion is usually the first information a Bank Commissioner has of the insolvency of a bank.

By the letters to-day, we find a general impression in the Atlantic States, that the crop tamble of the separation of the control of the country inducement to market their crops early, but have done so freely to guard against any probable consequences growing out of the Harpet's Ferry affair. This will be more apparent as the season advances.
